The Ministry of the Interior and Administration introduced a new model form for applying for international protection

With effect from 23 April 2026, new forms for applying for international protection were adopted by a regulation of the Ministry of the Interior and Administration (Journal of Laws 2026, Item 489), replacing those in place since late 2015 (Journal of Laws 2015, Item 1859).

The new forms introduce more detailed identity and security verification, request more comprehensive information on the travel route and include additional questions on prior asylum applications in other countries. It also adopt a more structured approach to the legal grounds for requesting international protection and expand the sections on vulnerability and protection needs.
