The Danish Immigration Service launches new system for digital applications

The Danish Immigration Service and the Danish Agency for International Recruitment and Integration (SIRI) are gradually transitioning all digital application and visa invitation forms to a new IT system on nyidanmark.dk over the next 3/4 months. Applicants should follow the instructions on the relevant application page to access the correct system. Forms already started in the old system can still be completed and submitted there for a limited time. The new system features updated digital forms with a different layout and functionality. Additionally, applicants will be able to log in and view their submitted applications or invitations for up to 30 days after submission.
