Minister outlines key achievements of new government including rejection of mandatory solidarity and limitations to temporary protection

In July 2026, the Minister of the Interior presented the key achievements of the first 6 months of the new government. He highlighted that the Ministry of the Interior rejected mandatory solidarity and migration quotas resulting from the Pact on Migration and Asylum. In contrast, the Council of Ministers of the Interior managed to gain support for Czechia's proposal to limit the issuance of temporary protection and exclude men of military age, without the need to change Czech legislation.
