The Legal Center for the Protection of Human Rights and the Environment organises four trainings for stakeholders working with unaccompanied children

Four training sessions were organized within the framework of the Project CO.A.ST (My Coming of Age Story) in Slovenia in October. They were aimed to address the challenges faced when working with unaccompanied children.

80 stakeholders working with unaccompanied children in the field of asylum and migration including representatives of the civil society, legal representatives, representatives of various ministries and non-governmental organisations in the field of asylum and migration participated.

Several presentations were prepared including one on the Pact on Asylum and Migration and the challenges of legal representatives in the transition to adulthood.
