Bulgarian judges receive training on the main changes introduced by the Pact on Migration and Asylum

The National Institute for Justice organised a training for judges, jointly with UNHCR in Bulgaria, on the ‘EU Pact on Migration and Asylum – Procedural safeguards and qualification for international protection’. The training focused on the main changes introduced by the Pact, with emphasis on the new rules for the asylum procedures, the solidarity mechanism between Member States and procedural safeguards for asylum applicants. It also offered an opportunity for exchange of expertise and discussions on case law and EU law.
