Federal Council adopts proposal to amend the Foreign Nationals and Integration Act

The Federal Council adopted a proposal to amend the Foreign Nationals and Integration Act, aiming to improve labour market access for beneficiaries of protection status S and third-country nationals trained in Switzerland. The reform would allow employed S-status holders to change canton under certain conditions, require unemployed beneficiaries to register with public employment services and extend job search opportunities. It also facilitates labour market admission for third-country nationals who completed higher vocational training or postdoctoral work in Switzerland, granting them up to six months to find employment after completing their studies.
