Greece adopts Code of Conduct for professionals working with unaccompanied minors

In February 2026, the General Secretariat for Vulnerable Persons and Institutional Protection of the Ministry of Migration and Asylum, issued a published a Code of Conduct for professionals working with unaccompanied minors, accompanied by a circular on its implementation. These resources were shared with stakeholders relevant to child protection.

According to the circular, the Code of Conduct aims to establish a single framework of principles and rules that guide the responsible and ethical professional conduct of those working with unaccompanied minors. The Code focuses on the protection and well-being of minors, respect for human dignity and adherence to the principle of the best interests of the child.
