Among new elements included in this draft of the new asylum law, the Minister of Interior highlighted:

- Increase of the guarantees for applicants and improvement of the approach to situations of vulnerability through individual assessment of the need to apply special guarantees in the procedure and in the reception conditions.
- The regulation of the figure of the minors' representative and the clarification of aspects such as guardianship, search for relatives and presumption of minority while the evaluation is carried out.
- Clarifications related to the access to the procedure (the making, registering and lodging of applications), in particular deadlines which are reduced through the introduction of a new accelerated procedure that must be resolved in three months.
- The draft incorporates the border procedure.

- Detailed instructions for the examination of applications, it regulates the reception of applicants, including attention to special needs, such as schooling of minors, authorization to work, health care, material conditions of reception and their possible reduction or withdrawal in certain cases.

- The regulation of beneficiaries is completed with a clearer organization of their residence, movement and documentation, expands integration measures and provides specific attention for people with special needs such as minors, people with disabilities, pregnant women or victims of torture, violence or trafficking.
- The text develops the concepts of first country of asylum, safe third country and safe country of origin, which may impact on the admission or the way in which applications are processed, and introduces the possibility of integrating a return decision into the decision rejecting international protection.
- The regulation simplifies the appeals system: it strengthens the contentious-administrative route and eliminates, in general, the prior administrative appeal.
- Finally, the Ministry of the Interior is established as the decision-making authority, and the functions of the bodies and entities involved in the system are updated. The draft bill reinforces the confidentiality of all procedures, staff training, and the modernization of communications with stakeholders, incorporating the use of electronic means.
